Welcome From
Stephen Keener, M.D.
President
North Carolina Public Health Association

Welcome to New Bern for the North Carolina Public Health Association's 102nd Annual Educational Conference!

Most of us are familiar with the "quiet miracle" of public health. . . .the quiet and effective protection and promotion of health in our communities. This year's theme, "Turning up the Volume on Public Health," reflects how public health has addressed the many changes and challenges we have experienced in our work over the past year, and anticipates the continued importance of public health in strengthening our communities. The Program Planning Committee has put together a high quality agenda with something to interest public health professionals of all disciplines.

This year's conference is actually two meetings in one. In addition to the NCPHA Annual Education Conference, we are pleased to host the annual meeting of the Southern Health Association. The Annual Legal Conference of Association of Local Health Directors of North Carolina is also being held simultaneously in partnership with NCPHA. Plan to take advantage of this unique opportunity to network with your colleagues and public officials from throughout our region.

In addition, several public health leaders of national stature will be among us this week. Dr. Leah Devlin, our State Health Director and a past-president of NCPHA, will address the membership Wednesday morning at our Opening Session and North Carolina's First Lady Mary Easley will deliver the Glaxo-SmithKline lecture on Wednesday morning. APHA President Faye Wong will deliver an address on Thursday afternoon. Friday morning, our Wood Lecturer, Tyler Norris of Community Initiatives, Inc. will deliver his long-awaited Thomas Wood Lecture on Community Building.

Finally, your Local Arrangements Committee has planned plenty of time for fellowship with old friends and new, "down east" hospitality and cuisine, and lots of music and fun. I think you will see this is a Conference to remember! Let's "turn up the volume!"

Welcome from
Richard Funderburk
President
Southern Health Association

As President of the Southern Health Association, I would like to extend to each of you a warm welcome to this Joint Annual Meeting of the North Carolina Public Health Association and the Southern Health Association (SHA).

The events of the past year have resulted in all of us reviewing what we do in Public Health and how we use our scarce resources. The additional federal dollars for increased public health infrastructure will allow us to greatly enhance our ability to respond to the needs of our citizens. In order for us to be successful, we all will need to call upon every ounce of vision, versatility, insight, creativity, and patience we bring to our respective jobs. This is not a time for the faint-of-heart but a time for dedicated Public Health Workers, "YOU" to assume a leadership role in seeing that our citizens are protected to the best of our ability.

Much internal work has been done within SHA this past year. Most of it focused upon how we can be SHA can offer greater assistance to its member states. In order for us to be successful in this area, we must have input from you the members of our affiliate states. We encourage you to look at what you do and please to let us know of anything we can do to assist you, not only as an affiliate state but also as a fellow public health professional.

Before we as a regional association or you as a state association can become the called upon voice in Public Health we must increase the number of individual memberships. Remember when dealing with elected officials, numbers count. We urge you to please get off the sidelines and into the game. Step out and ask a friend, co-worker, or family member to join our associations.

While serving as your president during the past two years I have attempted to promote active involvement of our all public health workers, not only in each state association, SHA, but also within the communities where each of us live and work. Not necessarily as Public Health Workers but as private citizens who are concerned with their local community, county, and/or state. I encourage each of you never to always care enough to get involved.

It has been a very rewarding experience to be involved in the leadership of this organization for the past few years. While serving as president I've had the opportunity to meet so many wonderful fellow public health professionals. I will be forever touched by all of the warmth and kindness shown to me during this time. Thank You for allowing me to serve in this most rewarding role.

TYLER NORRIS

Tyler Norris is President of Community Initiatives Inc., which provides consultation to organizations and community collaborations with a focus on building healthy and sustainable communities. He also serves as Senior Advisor to the U.S. Coalition for Healthier Cities and Communities, which he helped found. The coalition is a nationwide network of over 1,500 community partnerships and organizations. He served as its Executive Director from its establishment in 1996 through December 1999.

He has helped initiate scores of civic, health and education projects, and is regularly asked to design, develop and facilitate community-based strategic planning, capacity building and problem solving projects. Tyler previously served at the National Civic League as Director of the Civic Assistance Program, and then Senior Associate.

Tyler has worked with a wide range of civic and health-related organizations and collaborative efforts in over 200 communities around the United States and abroad. Past projects include his founding directorship of the Coalition for Healthier Cities and Communities and the $9.1 million Colorado Healthy Communities Initiative. He has held leadership roles in community partnership projects with the U.S. Dept. of Health and Human Services, the EPA and Dept. of Agriculture. He is the author of the Healthy Communities Handbook and a co-author of a leading publication on Community Indicators. Norris is a W.K. Kellogg Fellow and a member of the International Health Futures Network.

Tyler has broad experience in the private, public, and nonprofit sectors. In 1992 he helped form Chautauqua International to provide leadership development and planning support to emerging democracies. At the Windstar Foundation he helped initiate 22 citizen leadership organizations in the US, Canada, Japan and Australia. Tyler is a co-founder and served as a five year President of STEP 13, a Denver non-profit human services program, providing opportunity for homeless substance abusers. He is a pilot with over 2300 hours and a graduate of the Colorado College in 1982 with a BA in International Political Economics. He is married and has two young children.
