President's Welcome:

Welcome to the North Carolina Public Health Association Annual Educational Conference. Thanks to all the committees responsible for making this meeting happen. I hope that you will enjoy the time to network with your peers, but more importantly, I hope that you learn something from all the educational offerings to take home and make your job better. Take the opportunity to go to a variety of the in-services offered.

Our theme says it best.....PUBLIC HEALTH: CALLED FIRST-EXPECTED TO BE THE BEST. There really is no better way to describe our role in prevention, protection, and education of the citizens of North Carolina. Public Health has been pushed to the forefront and more people are realizing that the "Quiet Miracle of Public Health" is now a lion ready to roar. We can only be the stewards of the public's health by being prepared, ready to be called into action and ready to offer a helping hand. Public Health is all those things and more. This year we had a busy Legislative session and our Executive Director spent untold hours representing NCPHA and attempting to make our needs known to the lawmakers. Thank you to all of our members who make this possible by your dues, and we encourage you to continue your membership and invite others at your work to join as well.

I would be remiss not to reflect on 9-11-01 when we were here in Winston Salem ready to start our conference, excited to see old friends and ready to make plans to have a good visit. After we started our Governing Council, folks started coming in with reports of terrorism, cell phones started ringing, folks had fearful looks on their faces. It was then that we heard the news of the terrorists' attacks on our country. Two years have passed, but I still get a little of that same feeling as we come back to Winston Salem. Certainly many things have changed and we have been forced to become a part of the team to protect against terrorist attacks and biological warfare. We have been forced to learn and become aware of symptoms, infectious diseases that we have never been a part of before, do what we do best - investigate outbreaks, and come up with plans to protect our citizens. But, we have risen to the challenge; we have pulled ourselves up and we are proud to be AMERICANS. Please pause and remember those who lost their lives, our military who have been called to protect us, and the families of all involved. Be proud to be a Public Health professional and be ready to be called and to be the best.

Enjoy this conference and I look forward to making new friends and seeing old friends.

Debra Harris
President, NCPHA

Local Arrangements

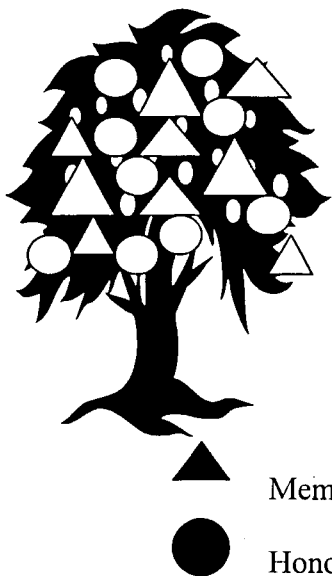

The Local Arrangements Committee and NCPHA would like to welcome you to Winston-Salem for this year's Annual Educational Conference. The Committee has worked hard over the past weeks to ensure that this conference will be enjoyable and worthwhile. We know that you will gain new insights and knowledge and make new friends during the many workshops and presentations that will be shared this week.

Many people, from a number of counties, have been involved in the planning for this meeting. We thank each and every one. We are grateful for the efforts that have gone into ensuring the success of this week.

This week you will have a chance to develop your skills and knowledge, the chance to renew friendships and make new ones and opportunities for social get-togethers. From the beginning GlaxoSmithkline Awards to the ending Wood Lecture, we hope your week is a memorable one. If there is anything we can do to make your visit a success, please let us know.

Pride in Public Health says: "Tie One On" at the Annual Meeting

Do you know that special person that exemplifies the Public Health spirit?

Why not show you care by purchasing a Public Health recognition medallion!
For a $1 donation you can purchase a medallion in Honor or Memory of that special someone.

The medallion will have a place for their name and a personal message.

The medallions will be tied onto the Pride in Public Health Recognition Tree for all to see.

Your acknowledgement will also be noted in the Pride in Public Health Recognition Registry.

Thank You for supporting NCPHA!

NCPHA is Proud to Announce for the 2003 Wood Lecture

Colonel Jerry Jaax

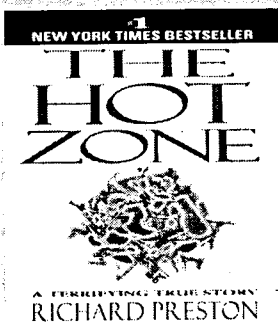

Colonel Jerry Jaax is one of America's leading experts on bioterrorism, in particular agroterrorism.

Along with his wife, Colonel Nancy Jaax, Colonel Jaax plays a heroic role in the best-selling book, The Hot Zone; and their work inspired the movie Outbreak, with Dustin Hoffman. In their best-known case, America faced a real life outbreak of the highly contagious Ebola virus, which kills by massive internal hemorrhage and is capable of jumping from one species to another. In a quarantine facility in the town of Reston, Virginia, the lethal virus broke out among recently imported monkeys.

Jerry led the team of space-suited Army soldiers who infiltrated the hot zone and successfully contained the outbreak. Meanwhile, back at the United States Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases (USAMRIID) in a top security lab, Nancy conducted emergency autopsies on the monkeys to determine the exact cause of their deaths. Their work drew attention to the dangers facing us as newer, deadlier viruses crop up.

Jerry retired from the Army in 1998 and is currently Associate Vice Provost and University Veterinarian at Kansas State University.

- Unmatched expertise in the most dangerous and mysterious diseases in the world.
- Deep knowledge of the science of bioterrorism
- A compelling voice in educating the public on the true nature of the bioterrorist threat

The Bioterrorism Threat

Few people in the world can match Colonel Jerry Jaax's expertise in the study and assessment of the bioterrorism threat. He has been on the front lines of the fight against Ebola, Anthrax, Congo Fever, and the many other deadly viruses that exist around the globe. The research and field work of he and his wife, Colonel Nancy Jaax, have helped to develop medical defenses against chemical and biological agents. In recent years Colonel Jaax has turned his considerable scientific expertise to the study of bioterrorism. He has been quoted as an expert in this area by the New York Times, The Washington Post, USA Today, and many other papers, as well as being interviewed on the subject by numerous local and national television shows. His compelling report on the state of the bioterrorism threat is essential for anyone interested in the safety and security of America and her allies.
